UNIVERSITY BAPTIST CHURCH

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA

A Word from Michael

Snow days! We have a range of emotions about them. The young and the young-at-heart get excited about school cancellations and snowmen. Even those of us who are older can still marvel in the quiet of the snowfall and the way it makes the world look new and beautiful. Of course, many others see snow differently as they contemplate the work of shoveling, the possibility of losing electricity, and the interruption to their lives. But whether we like the interruption or not, there’s not much we can (safely) do about it until the snowfall is over. We can sit and wring our hands about the work we should be doing or the places we wanted to go — or we can embrace the opportunity and see the time at home as a gift.

I’m not going to sugarcoat the challenges of a snowstorm. My back reminds me that this weekend’s shoveling has been hard. But it has also been a gift to see the beauty of the snow ... to have time to read or watch some games on TV ... to be with family without the rush of a schedule ... to chat with neighbors as we dug out our driveways and cul-de-sac.

As my last Sunday approaches, I am mindful that in some ways, I am facing — and UBC is facing — an interruption. We know there will be challenges. Let us also be open to its gifts.

~Blessings, Michael

Report from Church Council

Church Council is exploring ways in which our church might be more inclusive to those who are willing to serve on committees, councils, teams and thus provide additional avenues of service within our congregation. More specifically, we seek to clarify which positions of lay leadership should require church membership or associate membership as a prerequisite to serve.

We welcome your comments and thoughts before we make a recommendation to the congregation at an upcoming Church Conference. Diane Mundell, Sarah Wilson, Larry Johnson, Will Brown, and I serve on this Church Council task force, and we welcome your input.

Ed Smith, Chair
Church Council

Did You Know?

Our Tuesday Morning Work Team has been hard at work this week — Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Thanks to the efforts of several Tuesday Work Team members, the sidewalks and steps of UBC were cleared. The church hired someone to plow the parking lots, and members of the Work Team applied about 400 pounds of ice melt to both lots, shoveled extensively, and ran the snow blower.

A second big project got on the to-do list for the Work Team this week after a pipe in the cooling tower froze, which resulted in water coming into a third floor hallway and a classroom — damaged ceiling tiles, wet sofa, damaged paint. The Team is tackling the cleanup and repair, which will take several days.

We are so lucky to have the Tuesday Morning Work Team. One church member wrote, “Thanks for all you guys have accomplished — we all appreciate it.” Another member commented, “Whatever would we do without this terrific group?? My friends’ churches are jealous of such superb help!”

Everyone is encouraged to add your words of thanks to this dedicated group of volunteers who show up every week to tackle “whatever is on the list.”

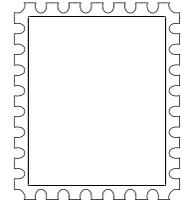

Team: Robby Gough, Alan Hendricks, Bill Jessor, Elsom Johnson, Larry Johnson, W.C. Keith, Page Mann, Bill Murray, Ed Smith, Richard Vaughan, Bill Wagoner

“I know the plans I have for you, says the Lord, plans to give you hope and a future.”
