Thank You From the LTT!

The Leadership Transition Team thanks everyone who participated in the congregational conversations. We had great turnout and lively discussions. We look forward to sharing the results with you soon, and we will use this information to help craft the senior minister and church profiles.

If you were not able to attend, but would like to participate, please notify the church office:

A Bridge Across

We’ll take our time as we need and want, we’ll linger only to see what we can see, then we’ll move along to the other end of the Bridge, to meet whomever the next Senior Minister should be.

The saying goes, “Courtship is based on play; marriage is based on work.” But ask any couple happily married for many, many years, and they will say, “Keep the romance alive!”, or “He makes me laugh!”, or “I don’t know, except she’s kept on loving me all these years!”

What about all the work? “Oh, yeah, there’s been some work.” They catch each other’s eye, sure, but why talk about the work? It’s what you do ... you work at it, you laugh a lot, you cry some ... it’s a marriage. Or it’s a long-lasting friendship, and it’s a congregation, too. University Baptist Church is in the work-at-it stage of its life together in Christ. That’s what a church’s interim time is about.

Interim times aren’t really chosen in advance by a congregation, so much as encountered. That’s when the congregation gets to choose how to respond. It’s like those tight spots in a marriage or a worthwhile friendship. No one goes looking for the tight spots, but they seem to hunt us down regardless. Tight spots make us pay especially close attention as we ask, “How much do you and I value this thing we’re in together? Does the good, the joy, the love we’ve experienced together warrant some extra labor for a time?”

Work-at-it conversations are not drawn from the “Do you want fries with that?” genre. They demand a degree of risk taking. Back to the marriage/good friendship analogy: Somebody has to go first. So, you ask a significant question to which you don’t already have a good answer. You’re uncertain how the other person will react or whether he/she’s got a ready answer either.

You trust and hope that the two of you together can craft an answer, but you don’t know that for sure at the get-go. You simply make your wager, and bet on the other person. You bet she/he values you enough, holds your relationship dearly enough, for you to forge ahead, ask the question and then, Lord willing, wait on her/his patient reply.

The previous paragraph may ring a Bible bell for you. It’s this truth from 1 Corinthians, “Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things ... For now we see in a mirror dimly, but then face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall understand fully, even as I have been fully understood.” (1 Corinthians 13:7, 12)

You know only your part, as each of your fellow UBC’ers know only their parts, to the answers of these work-at-it, interim time questions. UBC’s interim time requires us all to put into practice the ancient and wise council of our faith, that we bear with one another, believe in one another, hope for the best for our fellowship, and endure the challenge of reaching that best. In other words, that we love one another.

Your Senior Minister in the Interim,
Gary

Proposed By-laws Changes

The Church Council Task force on Lay Leadership Affiliation seeks input from the congregation regarding the May 25, 2016 draft of recommended changes to the By-laws. These changes are designed to make UBC more inclusive and broaden our base of lay leadership. A draft of the proposed changes can be found at <http://wp.me/p3JX6D-1Z4>, and copies are in the church office.

Please contact members of the task force if you have additional thoughts and ideas. We seek your input and value your comments.

"Students on free or reduced-price lunch make up between 50 and 60% of [the Woodbrook School] population. This is an upward trend and higher than the average for Albemarle County. This comes as a shock to lots of people, because Woodbrook doesn't look or feel like a high-needs school. I attribute this to a top-notch staff, active PTO, and the many resources (such as school supplies!) that are generously donated to our school. More than any other school I've worked in, kids here love coming to school every day because they get what they need, not just academically but physically, socially, and emotionally."
