Welcome, Marcus Stanley!

Marcus Stanley is the new Social Media Coordinator for UBC and begins working here on Wednesday, July 18. He truly understands social media and will be able to use it to help us share the good things God is doing at UBC.

Marcus is also an accomplished musician and speaker, with the ability to touch people's lives as an instrument of praise. At the age of 17, he began playing for national recording artists, and has performed at venues around the globe. He has now traded in the life of performing music for a life of sharing the gospel of Jesus Christ. He has ministered in numerous cities around the globe.

Marcus has said, "In 2010 I was set free from the bondage of addiction, and I've been walking in my freedom ever since. I'm on a movement for Christ, and I'm not slowing down...If I can change, anyone can change..."

Ten facts about John Rutter:

1. A budding composer at school

Born on 24 September 1945 in London, John Rutter was educated at Highgate School, where a fellow pupil was the future composer John Tavener. At school, Rutter already loved to sing and compose.

2. Recording Britten's War Requiem

Highgate's high musical standards meant that the school choir was often invited to take part in performances, the highlight of which was the famous Decca recording of Britten's War Requiem. "To just be a fly on the wall at an event like that where we knew that musical history was being made was extraordinary," said Rutter.

3. At Clare College, Cambridge

When Rutter began his degree at Clare College, Cambridge, he was already an experienced composer. At 18 he wrote his famous Shepherd's Pipe Carol. David Willcocks, who was running the music department at King's College, looked over Rutter's manuscripts and said, "Would you be interested in seeing some of these published?" Rutter said, "I was truly gob-smacked."

4. Impact as composer and teacher

In 1974, Rutter visited Nebraska, USA, to conduct the premiere of his cantata Gloria. Between 1975 and 1979 he returned to Clare College where, as director of music, he made a tremendous impact, raising choral standards to the level of the more famous King's. Yet by now his own music had really begun to take off and he was also increasingly in demand as a conductor.

5. Great choral works

Rutter's larger choral works, Gloria (1974), Requiem (1985), Magnificat (1990), Psalmfest (1993) and Mass of the Children (2003) have been performed countless times in Britain, North America, and a growing number of other countries.

6. Eclectic compositions

Rutter's music is eclectic, showing the influences of the French and English choral traditions of the early 20th century, as well as of light music and American classic songwriting. Almost every choral anthem and hymn that he writes, in addition to the standard piano or organ accompaniment, has a subsequent orchestral accompaniment as well, using varied instrumentation.

7. Working practices

When composing, Rutter will often work from mid-morning until midnight with only a break for dinner. He thrives on discipline and feels that the most vital aspect of any new piece is to come up with a first-rate idea, which then becomes a vital springboard for the piece as a whole. He prefers to make revisions and corrections as he goes along rather than revisit and make any changes after a piece has appeared in print.

8. Preserving tradition

Rutter co-edited four volumes in the Carols for Choirs series with Sir David Willcocks, and, later, edited the first two volumes in the Oxford Choral Classics series, Opera Choruses (1995) and European Sacred Music (1996).

9. Music for special occasions

Nowadays, John Rutter is often invited to compose music for special occasions, most memorably for the wedding of Prince William and Catherine Middleton, which featured his enraptured anthem, This Is The Day.

10. Honoured composer

In 1996 the Archbishop of Canterbury conferred a Lambeth Doctorate of Music upon John Rutter in recognition of his contribution to church music. He was also honoured in the 2007 Queen's New Year Honours List, receiving a CBE for services to music.
